NEWS

Taylor & Francis Group is delighted to announce the recent acquisition of Triangle Journals Ltd, founded by the well-known Oxfordshire Publisher, Roger Osborn-King.

Eight of the Triangle journals are in the field of education, therefore further enhancing Routledge's position as number one journal publisher in the field. The following titles will be published from 2006:

Educational Action Research
International Studies in Sociology of Education
Journal of In-service Education
Journal of Vocational Education and Training
Pedagogy, Culture and Society
Research in Post-Compulsory Education
Teacher Development
Technology, Pedagogy and Education

The other titles; Women's History Review and Women's Writing, will be assimilated into our Arts and Humanities and Social Science programmes, respectively.

Please note that Roger Osborn-King will continue publishing books and e-journals under the Symposium imprint.

Routledge is also pleased to announce that back issues of the British Journal of Sociology of Education, edited by Professor Len Barton, Institute of Education, University of London, will be released onto the Scholarly Journal Archive \(JSTOR\) in June 2005.

We are also delighted to say that Routledge has become the publisher of Irish Educational Studies, official journal of the Educational Studies Association of Ireland \(ESAI\). The journal is dedicated to the advancement of educational research both in Ireland and internationally. Irish Educational Studies is edited by Dr Ciaran Sugrue of St Patrick's College, Dublin.

Further information on our new Education journals in 2005 and 2006 can be accessed at: http://educationarena.com/educationarena/journals/new_titles.html

CONFERENCES

Between 29th June and 1st July 2005, Routledge has attended the the First Annual Meeting of the Higher Education Academy at Heriot-Watt University, Edinburgh, Scotland, UK. The event focused on themes such as curriculum in higher education, learning environments and their development, enhancing learning and students' success and higher education policy and practice.

For more information, please visit the conference's homepage.

In April 2005 Routledge attended AERA 2005 Conference in Montreal. With more than 12,600 attendees, the event provided a unique forum for discussion and exchange amongst participants. However, the conference was not only a place to discuss educational issues; it was also a venue to celebrate the launch of e-Updates, a new e-mail updating service, which delivers information on books, journals, conferences and other news directly to your inbox. At the conference, AERA delegates were invited to test their knowledge of e-Updates by entering a prize draw.

We are now pleased to announce the names of the winners:

1st Prize goes to Michelle McGinn, Brock University, Canada, who wins a portable MP3 player;

2nd prize goes to Michelle Anderson, Education Consultant from Victoria, Australia, who wins US$100 worth of Routledge books;

3rd prize goes to Tiffany Wheeler, Transylvania University, Lexington, USA, who wins a personal subscription to the 2005 Volume of the International Journal of Research & Method in Education.
